

Sample Interview Questions:

The Book is published! A few reviews have been written. The word is out. You will be giving interviews. Have at least 10 questions ready covering biographical info, book content, and writer advice.

An interviewer may have their own. More likely, they are over-worked and will appreciate an emailed list to them before the interview date.

Keep a copy for yourself with your response notes.

1. Why did you feel compelled to write about _____?
2. Who will be interested in reading _____?
Have you written any books previously? If so, what genres have you written in?
3. Where did you grow up? Education? Previous career before writing?
4. Who/what influenced you to be a writer?
5. What is your writing background?
6. How do YOU go about drafting and revising your writing?
7. What is your favorite part of your book?
8. Do you plan on writing more books in the future?
9. What's the most important thing you want readers to take away from reading your book?
10. What books are you reading now?
11. What advice do you have for aspiring authors?